Senator Simmons said he hoped to be able to finish at least by Friday. The income tax may be considerably altered by the senate at the proposal of the subcommittee to add to the $4,000 exemption an additional $500 for each minor child in the family. This was to be favorably considered by some members of the minority and may be recommended to the caucus.

The committee was confronted at the outset of today's session with the formal objection of Henry Oxnard of the Beet Sugar Company and Truman G. Palmer, head of the Washington office of the sugar interests against the reading of any more correspondence.

John W. Yerkes, an attorney who said he represented the two sugar men, broke into the proceedings when a letter from Oxnard to Palmer was read by Chairman Overman.

WORK PROGRESSING ON NEW DORMITORY

Exterior Work Completed—Locker Rooms Nearly Ready—Bids For Furnishing Not Let.

Progress in the construction of the new dormitory addition to the C. C. building and the remodeling of the other portions will go forward at an accelerated rate from this time on as the most difficult work has been completed. The exterior work on the three-story addition to the dormitory is practically finished and the first coat of plaster has been applied to the walls of the rooms on the first and second floors. There will be twenty-seven rooms in the addition. Those not having outside windows will be illuminated by two light and air shafts on which they open. There will be two skylights in addition to those capping the light shafts. Two dormitory windows open to the south and a new gable on the west. The roof will be finished by the end of this week.

Beneath the dormitory and located in the basement will be a swimming tank, the concrete side walls of which are now in place. A cement floor is yet to be put in and the two bids that have been received for installing the tile lining have not yet been opened. A coat of waterproofing will be applied to the concrete, over this a brick lining and then the tile. This will make the tank absolutely watertight even if one or more of the tiles should be broken. Connections with the sewer to the east and the tank are now being made. When filled and ready for use the water will be tested frequently to insure its purity.

The new banquet room was used for the first time Monday evening when Trinity Episcopal church held a banquet there in commemoration of the sixtieth anniversary of the consecration of the church. It is a very attractive room with its cream colored steel ceiling divided into four panels by three large transverse beams and illuminated by nine large windows. The permanent lighting fixtures, combination gas and electric, are yet to be installed. The new floor is of hard maple and carefully laid.

Locker rooms for the seniors, intermediates, businessmen and juniors have been partitioned off. All but those for the businessmen and juniors have been plastered and finished with the exception of painting and cleaning. The bowling alley has been plastered on the ceiling and inside wall.

Bids for two billiard and two pool tables, tiling for the swimming tank and front entrance, and three bowling alleys have not yet been opened. Bids for the pool and billiard tables and bowling alleys have been received from the Brunswick-Balke-Coleman Company of Chicago, the Minn. Billiard Company of Milwaukee, Merle & Heaney, Wm. Company of Chicago, and other companies in St. Louis, Toledo and Detroit. Those for the installation of 200 steel lockers have been submitted by four or five different firms. This will triple the number of lockers now possessed. The kitchen opening on the banquet hall has been provided with a large new gas range but considerable more equipment is to be put in.

EXPERIMENTAL CLUB ACCOMPLISHES MUCH

Workings of the Wisconsin Experimental Association Are Explained in Detail.

The Wisconsin experimental association is an organization of farmers throughout the state of Wisconsin and has for its object the betterment of the farming industry in general. The bankers, manufacturers and merchants throughout the country are all organized into associations for the exchange of thought and to look after the welfare of one another.

In fact, any banker will tell you that it is next to impossible to exist today without keeping in touch with the outer world through the bankers' association. This is true of every industry and there is no reason why the farmers should not be organized also. There is no industry in existence which has more bearing upon the population of the world than farming. Every wheel in all the factories would stop running, the minute the farmers failed to grow a crop. The size of the crop determines the prosperity of the country.

Now the work that is being taken up at present is the improvement of the grain crop and to this end the Wisconsin pedigree grains are being introduced and disseminated just as quickly as the farmers recognize the great advantage of these grains over common grain. It is a very bad thing to have a badly diseased seed very low yields are almost sure to result.

The Rock county order of the experimental association is open to all farmers who wish to become members. There is a fee of five cents for this small fee is realized many times over by the benefits derived from the association. Members are supplied with pure bred seeds at reasonable prices. They are also supplied with the best methods of handling seed grains and to teach them how to keep their fields free from dangerous weeds and diseases which are largely responsible for the poor yielding qualities of the old seed grain.

The list of members in Rock county numbers 112 at present and includes some of the best farmers and stockmen in the county.

Any farmer wishing to obtain additional information on this subject will find the secretary more than pleased to answer any questions along this line.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

BE TRUE.
Maintain the integrity of your own life.
It is only in an atmosphere of truth that noble souls can grow. The mists of deceit shut out the spiritual sunlight that is necessary for the inward unfoldment. Falsehood stunts the finer sensibilities. It shames all the better nature in us until we cannot look another in the eye. It makes of a man a sneak, until he covers before his fellows. It makes of him a sham who tries to seem what he is not. It makes of him a cheat, who cheats himself more than any one else.

The liar is a coward at heart. The very consciousness of his deceit takes all the courage and manliness out of him. He resorts to falsehood to escape some real or imaginary ill. He seeks to evade the consequences of guilt by covering it up. He is too shortsighted to realize that he only compounds the fault and that some time, somewhere, he will have to pay the penalty for two sins instead of one.

Lying is so petty and mean that only a small nature is capable of it. If a great soul errs it is in a great way. He cannot stoop to the despicable and little. If he goes amiss he has the courage to face the results of his wrongdoing. But the liar skulks and evades. He cannot put on the lion front and stand at bay, but like the snake, wriggles out of sight.

The man who can bear false witness necessarily has a yellow streak in his makeup. He would probably be capable of any other meanness that he had the bravery to attempt. False in one thing, false in all.

The tongue is not the only lying member. You may bear false witness by a look, a shrug or an attitude. You may seal your lips, but lie in your heart. Your whole life may be a deception. You may be posing for the thing you are not. If so you are false to the world and to your own soul.

Naturalness is coming to be more and more prized. Be what you are. Think too much of yourself to ape another. Don't pose. Don't gild your exterior and leave your interior full of filth and pollution. Seek rather to make your heart right and let that shine through and irradiate your life. Be genuine. Live your own life. Express your own soul. Stand for your own honest thought.

He who maligns another hurts three persons. He detracts from the reputation of the man of whom he speaks, poisons the mind of his hearer and dwells his own soul.

Honor is but another name for truth, and he who bids the souls of all unto him, for he expresses in so far the quality of things eternal.

All through the ages men have searched for truth and at last have learned that the only way to gain it is to be true to themselves.

The horde of lobbyists which have infested Washington since the opening of the special session, represent separate interests, which are effected, and between these interests, and an equitable solution, is the great army of lobbyists representing the general public.

Labor is as vitally concerned, in the outcome, as the industries, for while protection may be considered a tax, its burdens are so evenly distributed as not to be burdensome, and as an offset, it stimulates American industries, and furnishes employment, at a living wage, to an army of workmen.

Free trade with Canada has killed

the paper industry, and our mills, no longer able to compete, are already moving across the line. The labor unemployed, will be obliged to seek other avenues.

Free sugar looks attractive, but the price, now cheap enough, will not be reduced, as a result, while the beet and cane manufacturers will be compelled to retire from the field. This means idleness and loss.

A tariff commission, as suggested by the Journal, is the only intelligent solution of the question. Haphazard legislation is demoralizing to business, and can only result in disaster, to both the industries and labor.

It is a hundred years since Commodore Perry defeated the English fleet in the famous battle of Lake Erie and during the century just closing this great nation has spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the frozen north to the torrid southland.

A century makes a lot of difference but the same spirit exists today as did a hundred years ago and the whole nation unites in this anniversary celebration.

This probe into the lobby question

by the United States senate is going to bring out some peculiar conditions that have existed in every session of congress for many years past. It seems peculiar that men can not offer a protest against enactment of laws that will be injurious to their business interests without their motive being suspicioned.

These are the days that the residents of Janesville appreciate the river and the cool resorts that fringe both shores for miles along its course.

Why go to the Hudson to view the palisades when one can take a launch and journey up through as beautiful

a stretch of river scenery as a minimum cost?

Even the democratic senators and congressmen will begin to revolt if the president still insists that they remain in Washington until they pass all the laws he wants them to. Meanwhile Secretary Bryan drinks grape juice and chews gum, and Speaker

in Baltimore in the presidential race, smiles and enjoys the situation.

At last the playgrounds are being made ready for the children. This is a movement in the right direction and one which should bear fruit in years to come. While Janesville has been highly commended in this direction in the past it promises to make up for lost time now.

Today is the last day for filing nomination papers in the mayoralty fight and while the issue may be somewhat clouded by platforms made by the candidates the fact remains the recall was brought about by an element who felt the order to obey the law irksome.

An English judge has handed out a few sentences to the militant suffragettes that should be a severe lesson to the unruly women who believe that might is right and defy mere man to punish them according to their deserts.

So even President Wilson's daughter is called "chicken" with impunity

To do some hoeing and yank the weeds.

And show fair play to his turnip seeds.

And Ma looks on with a knowing smile.

He's been a bluffer us all the while.

And all the home made garden snags

We have is the kind our parents pass

At one another, most every day.

When one of us kids is sent away

To buy some tomatoes by the can.

From the little old corner grocery man.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.

Some unprincipled apology for a human being has broken into our woodshed and stolen our ax. Our wife missed it when she went out to get it for the purpose of chopping off enough wood to get dinner. It was a mean trick, for she had to finally hack

the wood up with our razor, the same one she uses for opening cans of oysters and scraping the rust off the top of the kitchen range. What is home without an ax? It is like a ship without a rudder or a peacock without a tail. No man can ever tell just as indispensable as the chimney on the house. While we are minus an ax, book agents, bill collectors and life insurance solicitors can call with impunity or without it just as they like.

We also used our ax to peel onions,

open cans, crack ice, spread sandwiches and turn pancakes, so the reader can readily understand our great loss. Will the gentleman who stole our ax please return it by Saturday

as the man who collects the instalments on our phonograph calls that day and we are desirous of coming to an amicable agreement with him, which we are sure we can do if we have the ax.

Constable Ezra Hand says he hopes the common council will get our fire engine repaired soon as it has been out of order for some time and it is quite a chore for him to run down to the Golden Nugget and borrow a selter siphon every time there is a fire.

The fire engine ain't worked good since William Tibbitts used it to pump out the cellar of his store last spring

during the flood, at which time it pumped itself full of potatoes and rubber boots.

What He Wanted.

Four-year-old Myron was served with some waffles one morning for the first time in his memory, and upon finishing them with a relish he called:

"Mamma, please bring me some more of those pancakes with windows in."

Human Beings Owe Each Other HELP

I always felt that I owed it to humanity to save them the ordinary pain incident to Dentistry.

I have sought a practical remedy throughout my lifetime.

At last I can now give you real immunity from pain while I drill out the most sensitive teeth.

Unnecessary Expenditures

It is easy to avoid great unnecessary expenditures, but it is the aggregate of the many small amounts you spend foolishly that keeps you from success. The thrifty man squanders neither his substance nor his vitality.

Refuses to Build a Chaos.

When we try to imagine a chaos we fail. Let it be as formless as we please, our creation will stand on its base; its left will balance its right; its wall float like a ship, drift as a cloud, or swirl as desert sands. In its very fiber the mind is an order and refuses to build a chaos.

WORK IS STARTED ON PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS

JEFFERSON AND WEBSTER SCHOOL GROUNDS DECIDED ON FOR EXPERIMENT.

WILL SOON BE READY

Competent Men Will Be in Charge of Both Grounds and There Will Be Plenty of Amusement for Children.

Actual work for the first of the two public playgrounds for the children of the city, has begun on the school grounds of the Jefferson and Webster schools, with the delivery of the heavy timbers which will be used in the construction of main frames of the apparatus which will be installed. Actual work of construction will start at once and it is hoped they will be ready for use by July 1 at the latest and probably earlier.

Play Supervisors.
The committee, of which H. S. Lovejoy is chairman, having charge of the installation of the apparatus are arranging for at least two supervisors of the playgrounds, young men competent to show how the various apparatus is to be used and supervise the action of the children using the grounds. They have been in communication with several applicants for the positions, and will make their selection within the next day or two.

The Apparatus.
For the present the apparatus to be installed will consist of what is known as a "main frame" containing flying rings, swings, climbing ropes, climbing poles and a turning bar. These will be firmly established and be permanent. Located as they are in the school grounds they will be used during the fall and spring terms of the schools and furnish good healthy amusement for the boys and girls.

Other Arrangements.
There will be teeter ladders, seesaws, and if possible, stands for basket ball and volley ball and jumping pits as well as sand boxes for the smaller children. The work on this afternoon that work would begin at once putting up the apparatus and that he hoped all would be in readiness for use by the children within a short time. The efficient manner in which the apparatus can be arranged for there will also be ball diamonds marked off which will add the interest in the grounds.

GRAND HOTEL SALE FINALLY ARRANGED

Business Owned by J. F. Sweeney for Twenty Years Past Transferred to Kenosha Parties.

Smith, both of Kenosha, according to authentic announcement made by the purchasers today. The transfer of the hotel and its contents from the Sweeney estate and other details of the deal have been completed and the new proprietors will take possession of the hotel on July 1. They were in the city today and announced that they contemplated extensive remodeling. They have both had experience in the hotel business.

Mr. Sweeney's plans, it is understood, are definitely at present but he will spend the summer at his cottage at Lake Kegonsa and will probably locate in Janesville which has been his home for years. Mr. Sweeney has an excellent reputation as a most gracious and accommodating landlord and he has a host of friends among the members of the traveling fraternity, especially who will regret his retirement from business.

The Argyle Case

"I might say, sir," he said, with a mixture of deference and defiance, "I think it would be nothin' unusual for Miss Mary to have a light in her room. Ye're wanted by th' detective, girl," he ended as the maid entered. She was a pretty, blue-eyed Irish girl, and her pretty eyes opened wide with alarm at the butler's words.

"What for?" she cried.

Kayton barely glanced at her. "Mr. Finley, will you please bring the cook?" he asked, with a certain emphasis on the "bring."

"Ye'll be wastin' yer time, sir," the butler warned him. "Mrs. Beauregard is the only intelligent member of the household that sleeps below stairs, an' she's been pestered by the police till she's all of a flutter."

"I'll have to see her," said Kayton curtly, and Finley went out to get the cook.

Kayton nodded to the frightened maid and made a swift mental appraisal. He decided to plunge immediately into the heart of things.

"Did you hear anything the night of the murder?" he asked abruptly. The girl shook her head. "No—no, sir," she replied tremulously.

"Nothing whatever?" he insisted with a frown.

"The—the rain—"

"What time was it?"

Kitty hesitated a moment. "A quarter past 1," she replied more firmly.

"You got up to look at the clock, did you?" he demanded.

"Oh, ho, sir!" exclaimed the girl, her alarm returning. "I got up because I'd—I'd left a window open downstairs."

"Did you go down to close it?"

"Yes," replied the girl faintly.

"Did you pass Miss Mazurett's room?"

"Yes."

"Was there a light under the door?"

"Yes," still more faintly.

"Did you speak to her?"

A pause. "Yes. Her—her maid had gone away for the night, and I thought perhaps I could do something for her."

"Was she ill?"

"She—she had a headache."

"She said so?"

"Yes, sir. She said she had a headache and couldn't sleep."

"Did you do anything for her?"

"No, sir."

Kayton fixed his gaze yet more keenly on the girl's face and waited until her eyes met his squarely.

"Didn't you go into her room?" he asked slowly.

"No, sir. Kitty hesitated again, and he waited. "She—she wouldn't let me in."

"Why not?" he demanded instantly.

"She said she'd be all right."

"Did you come down to this floor?"

"No, sir. I went right back to bed."

"Did you—never mind."

CHAPTER V. To Find Out the Truth.

KAYTON broke off with a nod as Mrs. Beauregard, the cook, waddled into the room. She was a round-faced old negress with woolly gray hair, strong teeth, still white, and a mouth of amazing breadth, depth and construction. In build she followed the line of a squat and badly constructed cylinder. In motion she resembled a venerable black duck. She wore a neat blue calico dress and white apron, and about her head was the inevitable kerchief of the negro serving woman. But Mrs. Beauregard's was a snowy white. She rolled her eyes ponderously about the room and finally brought them to rest on the great detective, who was surveying her critically.

"Am yo' de gen'l'man wants to see me?" she inquired, her arms akimbo and one broad foot advanced, giving her a singularly truculent air. Kitty hastily vanished, and Kayton smiled upon the old negress.

"Are you Mrs. Beauregard?" he inquired.

"Yes, sub, Ah am," she replied, voice and expression being by no means encouraging. "An' Ah's heah to say Ah don't wanna see yo'. Ah's seen nuff of yo' p'leccem. Ah observe eb'ry—eb'ry time anythin' had occa in this heah whuld yo' allus tries to put it on to cullud folks."

"How long have you lived here, Mrs. Beauregard?" inquired Kayton courteously, ignoring the arraignment of the police.

"H'm," sniffed the cook contemptuously. "How long has Ah libed heah? Lawd o' lobe, Ah allus libed heah! Ah libed heah eber since Miss Mary wuz a lil' child. What business is it o' yo's how long Ah libed heah?" And she glared upon Kayton.

"Well," returned Kayton, "if you've lived here so long you must have been greatly attached to Mr. Argyle."

The old darky swelled with wrath. "Don't yo' try to wish no scandal on me," she warned him. "Ah wahn no mo' 'tached to Mr. Argyle dan Mr. Argyle war 'tached to me. Dere wahn nobody else in dis heah town could cook for him."

"And I suppose you were just as much attached to Miss Mazurett?"

"Doan yo' figger yo' can make me say nuffin' 'gainst Miss Mary!" stormed Mrs. Beauregard, shaking her fist at him. "Come round heah tryin' to work up no lies 'gainst dat chile, fo' de newspaper! Ah know nuff to know she didn't do nuffin'."

Kayton bit his lip. "Young Mr. Argyle," he said gravely, "has brought me here to find out the truth. If you know anything that will help to clear Miss Mazurett you had better tell it."

The old termagant was impressed by both words and manner and regarded him doubtfully for a moment. Then she wheeled heavily upon the butler.

"Is dis heah man lyin' to me?" she demanded fiercely.

Finley shook his head. "There's tricks in all trades, Mrs. Beauregard, but I'm thinkin' the truth can't hurt Miss Mary. So whatever ye know ye'd best tell 'im."

Kayton nodded. "Well, what do you know?"

"Ah know," declared the cook defiantly. "Miss Mary hadn't nuffin' to do wi' dat 'assination, 'cause she was on de upph foh all de time."

"How do you know that?" asked Kayton.

"'Cause Ah done see her dere."

"Where were you?"

"Ah was crawlin' up dem kitchen stairs, an' deh was a light up deh, an' Ah look up an' Ah see her."

"What brought you upstairs?"

Mrs. Beauregard gathered up huge handfuls of her apron and rolled her eyes, swallowing visibly before she replied:

"Well, sub, Ah was waked up by a powful row in de middle ob de night. Feahed like somebody must ha' fell

"How do you know that?" asked Kayton.

lookin'. Den Ah call late Ah mus' dream'd some ob dat noise, so I goes back to bed an' didn't hear nuffin' mo' till mawnin'. An'—she took a long breath—"If yo'll excuse me, mistab, Ah'll go right back to mah bakin'. Ye' all 'pears to fo'get dat folks gotta eat."

"All right, general," nodded Kayton, with a smile, thinking of one of the best generals in the Confederate army who bore the name of the old negress: "go back to your commissariat."

Mrs. Beauregard had started to waddle out, but she wheeled about in warlike fashion.

"What's dat?" she demanded.

"What's dat yo' call me?"

Kayton laughed and waved his hand to her. "All right, Mrs. Beauregard. If I want you again I'll send for you."

Slowly withdrawing her gaze from his mirthful face, as if daring him to say anything more, the cook departed, grumbling half aloud:

"'Fo' don't see no mo' ob dis niggah. Come 'round heah askin' me all dem fool questions. Ah get so—so mingled Ah don't know when Ah's at. Hope to de Lawd yo' all cleah out of dis house an' leave his heah fambly in peace."

When Mrs. Beauregard's menacing growl had died away in the depths of the hall outside Kayton's expression instantly changed, and he looked as if he had never smiled in his life.

"I want to see Miss Mazurett," he said to Finley.

"Miss Mary, sir?" returned the butler, visibly disturbed. "Is it necessary? Could ye not let her be?" He was almost pleading.

"No," replied Kayton curtly. "Will you please go to her at once and tell her I want to see her?"

The old man sighed and shook his head. "I will, sir," he said in funeral tones, and he slowly departed. A second later Kayton was making a swift but minute inventory of the contents of the big antique desk between the windows. Manning looked up as his chief suppressed a low exclamation. He was standing at the other window with a handful of envelopes, from one of which he swiftly abstracted something.

"What have you got there, governor?" inquired Manning. Kayton held up a blank envelope.

"One of these had a new $100 bill in it."

"In the desk?" queried his assistant incredulously. "Looks as if it had been pretty well searched too."

Kayton shrugged his shoulders and his lip curled slightly.

"Yes, Joe," he said gently, "by the police."

Manning grinned as he bent over the little band satchel and carefully packed away his treasures.

"He must have been going to mail it to somebody," he suggested at last. Kayton was examining the find under a pocket magnifying glass.

"That's possible," he muttered.

"I wonder what stopped him," remarked the other thoughtfully. Kayton was holding the other envelopes up to the light, one after another, in rapid succession. He grinned, and with a perfect imitation of Finley brogue replied:

"If ye knew that an' had yer supper ye could go to bed."

Manning laughed and, righting the table, pushed it back to the center of the room and replaced cover and books.

"I've got all these, governor," he said. Kayton nodded.

"Better start now with the servants' finger prints. Joe. Get both hands. What is it, Finley?"

"Mr. Hurley's here, sir," said the butler from the hall door.

"Is Miss Mazurett coming?" demanded the detective.

"I'm goin' to her now, sir."

"Well, don't delay any longer," ordered Kayton, with a touch of sternness. "Tell Mr. Hurley to come in, Joe. He went on rapidly as Finley left, 'get out your pad. I want to send a telegram to the San Francisco office. Put this down in cipher.' Joe stood with pencil poised as his chief dictated:

"Look up Mrs. John Mazurett; maiden name, Nellie Marsh. Died in 'Frisco about twenty years ago. Get that off, Joe?"

"The girl's mother?" ventured the assistant.

"Yes," nodded Kayton. "I want to know about that scandal. This thing has happened through the girl some way or another."

Hastening out, Manning passed Mr. Hurley in the doorway. The lawyer entered eagerly, stripping off his gloves and held out a hand to the famous detective with a cordial smile.

"Good morning, Mr. Kayton," he said pleasantly. "I'm Mr. Hurley—Mr. Argyle's lawyer."

"Yes," said Kayton quietly, as he shook hands. "I'm glad to meet you."

"I'm glad you've come in on the case," returned the lawyer, in a sincere manner that was in itself a compliment. "I don't doubt you'll clear it all up for us."

"Well, I hope so, Mr. Hurley," said Kayton modestly. This interchange of compliments was the first trial of fells in which each man was estimating the other, and each felt in the other an antagonist, though they were on the same side.

"A friend told me about the Pinkham remedies and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured. I cannot praise your remedies enough for I know I never would have been well if I had not taken it."

Dinner Stories

A solicitor called upon a professional brother one day and asked his advice upon a point of law. The lawyer whose opinion had been sought, said:

"I generally get paid for what I know."

The questioner thereupon took half a dollar out of his pocket, handed it to the other, and remarked:

"Tell me all you know and give me the change!"

An American and a Scotchman were discussing the extent of frost experienced in the north of Scotland.

"Why, it's nothing at all compared to the cold we have in the states!" said the American. "I recollect one winter when a sheep jumping from a hillock in a field, became suddenly frozen on the way and stuck in the air like a lump of ice."

"But, man," explained the Scotsman, "the law of gravity wouldn't allow that!"

"I know that," said the American; "but the law of gravity was frozen, too!"

A man traveling in the country met a middle-aged farmer who said his father, ninety years old, was still on the farm where he was born.

"Ninety years old, eh?"

"Yes, father is close to ninety."

"Is his health good?"

"'Taint much now. He's been complainin' for a few months back."

"What's the matter with him?"

"I dunno; sometimes I think farmin' don't agree with him."

Rather Dull.

When we get down to it, life hasn't half as many complications as a ten-cent melodrama.

HEVELLY LIKE A PIN

What nut?

Having Too Many Things.

Many nervous, irritable, dissatisfied, unhappy women would become calm and contented if they would store, give or throw away half of their belongings. Some have abandoned elegant residences and taken their families into hotels or boarding houses who could have continued to keep up their homes if, instead of giving up the houses themselves, they had done away with the superfluous furnishings.

NATURE'S WARNING

Janesville People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come mysteriously. But nature generally warns you. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy—If there are settlements and sediment. Passage frequent, scanty, painful. It's time to fear serious kidney trouble.

It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have done great work in Janesville.

Benjamin Shallock, 269 S. River St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Two years ago I had a great deal of trouble from inactive kidneys. The secretions from my kidneys contained sediment and were otherwise disordered. My back became so lame that it was difficult for me to stoop or lift and I became all run down. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, these symptoms of kidney complaint left me and I enjoyed much better health. I could not be induced to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills were I not certain of their merits."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
